REASON: The department proposes to amend the above-stated rules to reorganize the department's fees according to the departmental division and the type of fee similar, to the rule structure for the diagnostic laboratory fee, thereby standardizing and simplifying the department's fee system. The department proposes to locate Animal Health division fees in ARM 32.2.401, Brands Enforcement division fees are in ARM 32.2.404, and Meat Inspection and Milk and Egg bureau fees in ARM 32.2.405. The department proposes to amend the authorizing and implementing statutes to coincide with the proposed restructuring of the fees. The department proposes to amend the language of some rules to include the common name of the service provided.

The Brands Enforcement Division proposes to increase fees to assure fees are commensurate with costs of services as required by 81-1-102(2), MCA. The proposed $150 fee increase on dealer and agent license fees would potentially affect 300 dealers and agents for a cumulative increase of approximately $45,000. The market license fee increase would affect 13 markets for additional revenue of $3,900. An increase in lifetime horse inspections, implementing a $250 charge for lifetime inspections books provided to approximately 20 qualified deputy local inspectors and implementation a $10 per hundred head of cattle grazing permit would potentially affect approximately 15,000 producers seeking livestock services on approximately 952,000 head of livestock for a cumulative fee of $95,200. The proposed increase will total approximately $144,100 annually, based on these numbers. The dealer and agent fee has not been increased for over ten years; market license fees have not been raised since their inception and in the past the department supplied lifetime horse inspection books free of charge. The grazing permit fee is increased from the $10 fee for any number of cattle to $10 per hundred because many producers move large herds (up to 1,000 or more) under the current $10 fee. Larger herds increase the time, work, and expenses for the department's livestock inspectors; therefore, the proposed incremental fee structure is consistent with 81-1-102(2), MCA.
